Everest claims Toronto woman

Death atop crowded mountain. 'Traffic jam' on trail meant climbers spent too much time at higher altitude: Official

A Toronto-area woman has died pursuing her dream of scaling Mount Everest.

Shriya Shah-Klorfine, a former MPP candidate in Mississauga, was among four people who died while descending from the summit Saturday in what are being described as overcrowded conditions.

"My wife was someone who lived life to its fullest, with irrepressible energy and vitality," her husband, Bruce Klorfine, said in a statement.

"She died in the pursuit of her dreams, and with the satisfaction of having achieved them."

Shah-Klorfine's website said she was the first South Asian woman from Canada to make the attempt to raise the Canadian flag at the top of the world's highest peak.

"Her ambition is to become Canada's 4th Canadian woman to make the climb and encouraging the youth and helping SickKids hospital" said a statement on a website dedicated to Shah-Klorfine's expedition.

Two of the climbers who died were believed to have suffered exhaustion and altitude sickness, Nepali mountaineering official Gyanendra Shrestha said.

'Death zone'

- The death toll raised concerns about overcrowding in what's known as the "death zone" at the top of Everest.
- An estimated 150 climbers tried to reach the top Friday and Saturday as they rushed to use a brief window of good weather in an otherwise troubled climbing season.

Man only third person to survive fall over Falls

A man survived a 50-metre plunge over Niagara Falls on Monday, becoming only the third person known to have gone over without a safety device and live.

Police and fire crews arrived at the scene around 10:20 a.m. after witnesses reported seeing a man climb over the retaining wall and deliberately jump into the river waters.

The man, believed to be in his 40s, went over the Horseshoe Falls and surfaced in the lower Niagara River basin adjacent to the Journey Behind the Falls observation platform, Niagara Parks Commission Police said in a release.

The man was swimming around when rescue crews located him and brought him to safety at about 12:16 p.m., as a crowd of Victoria Day tourists watched in shock.

Police said the man sustained life-threatening injuries.

He was transported by an ORNGE air ambulance to a Hamilton-area hospital.

The surrounding area was closed after the incident.

The last person to go over the Falls and survive was a 30-year-old Canadian man in March 2009.

In October 2003, a man from Michigan also survived.

Police officer mourned after motorcycle crash

Peel Regional Police. Officer was taken off life support after fighting for her life over the weekend

A Peel Region police officer died Monday morning after a long weekend spent fighting for her life.

Const. Ewa Domagalska was in a head-on motorcycle collision on Saturday in Orangeville.

Domagalska, 30, was on life support following the accident and was taken off shortly before her death. She was surrounded by friends and family.

Just before 5 p.m. Saturday, Domagalska was driving a motorcycle south on a rural stretch of Airport Road, north of Highway 9, when she collided with a northbound SUV. At the time, police said the off-duty officer had sustained life-threatening injuries.

No charges were laid against the SUV's driver.

Domagalska "will be missed by her family, friends, co-workers and community," the Peel police force posted on Twitter Monday morning.

Ewa Domagalska died Monday morning after her personal motorcycle collided with an SUV in Orangeville. COURTESY OF PEEL REGIONAL POLICE

A spokesperson for the force said the death of any officer is a tragedy and they were devastated by the loss.

An officer since 2005, Domagalska worked in 11 Division in Mississauga. Messages of condolence were posted alongside a photo of the officer, who lived in Brampton, on the force's Facebook page. In a teary phone conversation with the Toronto Star, her mother said the family was not ready to talk.

Domagalska's death was one in a series of accidents that marred the sunny Victoria Day weekend.

Second City performer Paul O'Sullivan died in a collision near his home outside Peterborough on Friday afternoon.

The 48-year-old actor and comedian was known for stage performances in Toronto productions, including The Producers and The Drowsy Chaperone, and had appeared in a variety of television series, including Murdoch Mysteries and Little Mosque on the Prairie.

On Saturday morning, a driver was airlifted to St. Michael's Hospital trauma centre after her vehicle was hit by a dump truck near Salem and Kingston roads, in Ajax.

Meanwhile, Highway 404 in the Whitchurch-Stouffville area was closed for part of Sunday after an early-morning crash sent an 84-year-old man and 62-year-old woman to hospital. Their vehicles were crushed at the centre of the highway.

The man had life-threatening injuries, and the woman was in serious condition.

Police in North Bay spent Monday dealing with a chemical spill after a tractor-trailer rolled over around 8:30 a.m. The driver died and formaldehyde leaked into the water system, calling for an evacuation of the surrounding area.

Retraction and apology to Conrad Black

In the May 7, 2012 edition of Metro and on metronews.ca, we published an article entitled, "Following the mogul script". That article incorrectly reported on the nature of Conrad Black's convictions.

In fact, the only convictions upheld against Mr. Black were one count of obstruction of justice and one count of mail fraud.

Moreover, we retract any allegation that Mr. Black created "flimsy businesses based on fraud." We apologize to Mr. Black for these misstatements.

Pearson. LINK shuts next year for construction of air-rail link from Union

For thousands of workers at Pearson airport, the LINK is a short but vital link in their daily commute.

Toronto's only cable-propelled transit, the Pearson's Automated People Mover (APM) carries about 17,000 riders daily, 60 to 70 per cent of them airport workers, the remainder Pearson travellers changing terminals or taking advantage of lower-priced parking a few minutes away by train.

Ridership has more than doubled since the $100 million LINK opened in 2006, says Iouri Moutine, GTAA superintendent of People Moving Devices Facilities. That growth has increased significantly since Pearson added its Value parking garage in late 2010.

A seventh car will be added to the two LINK trains when they go back into service after a seven- to eight-month closure next year.

In March, LINK riders will be consigned to buses during about six months of construction for the Union Station to Pearson express train which is expected to open by 2015 — and is likely to further boost LINK ridership. The train will arrive at Terminal 1 on a rail spur that runs right down the middle of the two LINK guideways.

After the six-month construction period, it will take another month or two to recommission the LINK before it can go back into service.

That pause will be the first major shutdown of the system since 2009, when it closed for three months to repair a problem with premature wear of the bogies, which form the frame underneath the train. It's an issue that had previously detracted from the APM's reliability, according to Moutine.

Propelled on a continuous loop of 36mm hydraulic cable, the LINK system is actually two driverless trains that operate side by side on an elevated guideway, shuttling back and forth on a 1.5-km, three-stop route in about four minutes.

The guideway is 30 metres above the ground at its highest point, providing a panoramic view of the airport as it climbs out of the Viscount Rd. terminus toward Terminal 3. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Trains. Possible strike could halt GO service

GO Transit is warning Milton line and Hamilton station commuters that service could be cancelled Wednesday if a Canadian Pacific Rail strike takes place.

The Teamsters Canada Rail Conference issued a strike notice Saturday after pension talks broke down. A strike could occur as early as midnight Tuesday.

GO Transit issued a statement Monday that the Milton line would not operate during a strike as the corridor is owned by CP Rail. Milton GO bus service will continue as normal but will not be increased. Passengers are being asked to consider the Lakeshore West and Kitchener train lines as alternatives.

The Hamilton train station tracks are also monitored by CP Rail. If a strike is declared, GO trains originating from Hamilton station will now start from Aldershot station, the route's second stop. A shuttle will also operate between the two stations. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Girlie Gioquino and Alberto Rodil are shown in this undated photo. Rodil, an immigrant settlement worker, helped repatriate Gioquino's body to the Philippines after she died in Toronto of lung cancer. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Migrant worker's body sent home

Repatriation. When Girlie Gioquino died unexpectedly in Canada, it was unclear who would make the funeral arrangements — a not uncommon story for those in the Filipino diaspora

Arranging a funeral is not on Alberto Rodil's job description as an immigrant settlement worker.

Yet he knew it fell upon him — and the wider Filipino community — to give Girlie Gioquino a proper memorial and, more important, to repatriate the woman's body to her family in the Philippines, the home she left behind a decade ago to work as a live-in caregiver, first in Israel and later in Toronto.

Diagnosed with an aggressive form of lung cancer on April 23, Gioquino wanted to return to the Philippines and die at home. However, she was already too sick to travel and died within three weeks of her diagnosis.

The problem is that Gioquino, like many migrant workers in Canada, had no family in Canada to take care of her funeral or the money to send the body home.

"It gets very complicated when you die suddenly and you don't have any family around to take care of you," said Rodil, who works at Thorncliffe Neighbourhood Office, where Gioquino, 42, was a member of the live-in caregiver support group. "Who is responsible for that?"

Rodil, with help of his colleague, has been working around the clock, making arrangements with Gioquino's family, the Philippines consulate and funeral homes. They have also gone to Filipino community groups as far away as California for financial support.

Over the past two years, Toronto's Balmoral Funeral Home has hosted services for at least five Filipino migrant workers who died of sudden illness or accident and needed repatriation to their families in the Philippines.

"Often their distant relatives or friends would take charge of the funeral and go to the community with the financial matter," said Balmoral's manager, John Arienda-Jose, who is also of Filipino descent. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

City welcomes royal couple

Charles and Camilla.
Prince of Wales and Duchess of Cornwall arrive in Toronto as part of Diamond Jubilee tour

Prince Charles and his wife Camilla have kicked off the Ontario leg of their Canadian tour.

The royal couple landed at Toronto's Pearson International Airport Monday after leaving New Brunswick, where they spent the first full day of their visit to Canada for the Queen's Diamond Jubilee.

They were greeted on the tarmac by Premier Dalton McGuinty, Lt.-Gov. David C. Onley and other dignitaries. The Duchess of Cornwall received flowers from a little girl, nine-year-old Morgan Marie Fremlin.

The royal couple began their Canadian tour in New Brunswick, where Prince Charles recalled his time training as a military pilot, extolled the virtues of service and, in a scene reminiscent of his son's visit last year, played a pickup game of street hockey.

But unlike Prince William, Charles scored.

It was an unconventional start for the couple's whirlwind visit — Charles's 16th to Canada — which began in earnest at Canadian Forces Base Gagetown, where he flew as a naval helicopter pilot in the 1970s "at an exercise area in the middle of nowhere," drawing a smattering of laughter from a crowd of about 800.

He also praised those who devote their time serving their communities — a prominent theme of the couple's visit as part of the Queen's Diamond Jubilee celebrations this year.

"The roll call extends from remarkable schoolteachers who, against all the odds, are giving their students the best possible start in life, to senior businessmen and women who are working creatively to share their practical skills and experience with communities who need a bit of help," Charles said.

The royal couple will depart Toronto on Tuesday evening for Regina. The next day, Charles will have a private audience with Prime Minister Stephen Harper and be treated to a concert by the Regina Symphony Orchestra before the tour concludes.

'Reset' housing policies: Report

Almost 8,000 new affordable homes and 13,000 new construction jobs could be created in Toronto in the next three years if governments unleash the power of the private sector, says a new city report to be discussed next week.

The report, by the city's Private Sector Housing Roundtable, calls on Toronto to "reset" city housing policies and encourages the federal and provincial governments to offer tax incentives and low-interest loans to developers who build affordable homes.

If approved by city council this summer, the report could kick-start the largest affordable housing construction boom in the city in 20 years, said Sean Gadon, director of the city's affordable housing office.

So far, Toronto's red-hot residential construction market has been dominated by condominiums that low- and middle-income earners can't afford while some 80,000 households languish on affordable housing waiting lists.

"We are ready to help tackle the affordable housing challenges in the ownership, new rental and existing private rental markets," says the report. "Given the current construction and renovation boom there is no better time to act."

The roundtable, set up a year ago by Councillor Ana Bailao after she became chair of the city's affordable housing committee, is made up of representatives of the development industry, building trades, private landlords, the board of trade and the United Way.

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Recommendations

Among the report's 12 broad recommendations are changes to the city's plan that would allow developers to increase height or density of their buildings.

- Other changes would encourage more affordable ownership housing on surplus city land and make it easier to renew aging high-rise towers.

State of emergency.
Kirkland Lake fire leaves 300 people stranded

About 300 people remain out of homes and cottages near Kirkland Lake in northeastern Ontario, which has declared a state of emergency as crews battle a nearby forest fire.

People were told to leave residential and cottage areas at Goodfish and Nettie Lake, about 600 kilometres north of Toronto, for safety reasons on Sunday.

Natural Resources officials say the fire broke out Sunday morning and by Monday had consumed more than 20 square kilometres of forest.

Crews from the town and Natural Resources aided by water bombers have been battling the blaze.

Thick black smoke could be seen for a distance over the surrounding area as warm winds from the south and 30 C temperatures made fighting the fire treacherous.

Birth-control battle leads to lawsuits

Catholic counterattack.
Religious institutions sue Obama administration over required health-plan coverage

Dozens of Roman Catholic dioceses, schools and other institutions sued the Obama administration Monday over a government mandate requiring most employers to provide birth control coverage as part of their employee health plans.

The lawsuits filed in federal courts around the U.S. represent the largest push against the mandate since President Barack Obama announced the policy in January. Among those suing are the University of Notre Dame, the Archdioceses of Washington and New York, the Michigan Catholic Conference and the Catholic University of America.

"We have tried negotiation with the administration and legislation with the Congress, and we'll keep at it, but there's still no fix," said New York Cardinal Timothy Dolan, president of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops. "Time is running out."

The U.S. Health and Human Services Department adopted the rule to improve health care for women. Last year, an advisory panel from the Institute of Medicine, which advises the federal government, recommended including birth control on the list of covered services, partly because it promotes maternal and child health by allowing women to space their pregnancies.

President Barack Obama appears at the close of the NATO summit on Monday in Chicago. JOHN GRESS/GETTY IMAGES

However, faith leaders from across religious traditions protested, saying the mandate violates religious freedom. The original rule includes a religious exemption that allows houses of worship to opt out of the mandate, but keeps the requirement in place for religiously affiliated charities.

In response to the political furor, Obama offered to soften the rule so that insurers would pay for birth control instead of religious groups. However, the bishops and others have said that doesn't go far enough.

Health and Human Services spokeswoman Erin Shields said Monday the department does not comment on pending litigation.

Notre Dame's president, the Rev. John Jenkins, said in a statement that the school decided to sue "after much deliberation, discussion and efforts to find a solution acceptable to the various parties." The university argued the mandate violates religious freedom by requiring many religiously affiliated hospitals, schools and charities to comply.

"We do not seek to impose our religious beliefs on others," Jenkins said. "We simply ask that the government not impose its values on the university when those values conflict with our religious teachings."

Student group calls for a summer of protests

Quebec. Huge rally planned to mark 100 days since students walked out of class

Quebec's largest student group has vowed to defy the Quebec government's new emergency law, calling for a summer of protests and acts of civil disobedience.

The C.L.A.S.S.E., the more radical of the province's three main student associations, declared Monday it would continue to encourage protests even if it meant it would lead to harsh financial penalties under the province's Bill 78.

"The special law won't kill the student movement," spokesman Gabrielle Nadeau-Dubois said on Monday.

"The fundamental rights under threat today need to be defended."

The student group called for protests at least until classes, which were suspended under the legislation, resume in August. It also launched an appeal for financial assistance for a legal challenge against Bill 78 and to help pay for any fines incurred.

Meanwhile, the international hacker group Anonymous hacked into the Quebec government public security's website on Monday, warning the government to be fearful of the group.

Fire forces evacuation

About 100 homes were evacuated Monday in Halifax after a brush fire erupted in a wooded area, leaving a dark cloud of smoke that could be seen kilometres away.

No Canadian boots on Afghan soil after 2014, Harper says

Afghanistan. 'If you asked me frankly, would I wish it was earlier? I would say yes,' said Harper at NATO summit

Canada's military involvement in Afghanistan will come to a firm end in March 2014, the prime minister said Monday at the close of the NATO summit.

Though Canada will continue to financially support the Afghan army, there will be no boots on the ground once the NATO-led mission there comes to a close, Stephen Harper said.

"The time has come," Harper said. "All the benchmarks, all the milestones are being met to make this possible."

The announcement came as NATO and its partner nations formally agreed that Afghan security forces would take control of any combat next summer with NATO sliding into a support role until 2014.

They expressed confidence in the ability of Afghan security forces to take the lead a year earlier than originally planned.

"Transition means the people of Afghanistan increasingly see their own army and police in their towns and villages providing their security," NATO Secretary-General Anders Fogh Rasmussen said.

"This is an important sign of progress toward our shared goal: an Afghanistan governed and secured by Afghans for Afghans."

The arc of Harper's views on Afghanistan might have been summed up in his body language as he and other NATO leaders began their final day of meetings. Harper was once the strongest proponent of the war in Afghanistan, vowing Canada wouldn't cut and run.

The head of the UN nuclear agency pushed Monday for a breakthrough pact with Iran to resume inspections into suspected secret atomic weapons work. It also possibly sets in motion further deal-making when envoys from Tehran and world powers gather later this week in Baghdad.

Iran denies it seeks nuclear arms and says its reactors are only for power and medical applications.

Dial-up Internet still reality for many Online access.

Thousands of Canadians rely on dial-up connections, mainly in rural areas

The next time you get frustrated because a website refuses to load instantly, or a streaming video has to buffer for a few seconds, think of the surprisingly large number of Canadians still on dial-up.

According to a few different estimates, there are hundreds of thousands of Canadians still travelling the information superhighway in the slow lane, who only get online after waiting for a series of bleeps, piercing shrieks and blurts of static to be belted out by their dial-up modem.

"It's pretty dramatic," says Ross Kouhi, executive director for the National Capital FreeNet, a donation-driven service that provides free or inexpensive dial-up access to about 3,600 users in the Ottawa area. "As you're demonstrating it to somebody it's always a little surprising to see just how slow things load."

The CRTC estimated that in 2010, there were about 366,000 dial-up customers across the country.

In rural communities, dial-up is the only way to get online. In 2010, the CRTC estimated that five per cent of the population had no access to high-speed Internet, with that rate nearing 16 per cent in rural areas.

Cuba's Internet still lagging behind

Ten months after an undersea fiber-optic cable was supposed to have improved Cuba's lagging online system, the Internet access in the country remains the slowest in the hemisphere.

While the project is rarely mentioned, people talk quietly about embezzlement torpedoing the project and the arrest of more than a half-dozen senior telecom officials.

Ottawa resisted shaming Russia in spy scandal

Measured response. Alienating Russia could have potentially set off tit-for-tat diplomatic expulsions, sources say

The Harper government had a host of military and possibly commercial reasons for not blaming and shaming Russia in the aftermath of an embarrassing spy scandal involving a junior intelligence officer, a series of internal briefings suggest.

The case of Sub-Lt. Jeffery Delisle, which exploded across the front pages in January, has largely disappeared into a black hole of secrecy and court-ordered silence that even a Wall Street Journal story failed to dislodge last spring.

The New York-based publication recently quoted U.S. intelligence sources saying

Sub.-Lt. Jeffery Paul Delisle
THE CANADIAN PRESS FILE

Delisle's breach in communications secrets was roughly as big in volume as the notorious U.S. data loss to WikiLeaks.

Yet, the Harper government has remained mute, even in the face of suggestions the case caused a major rift with Washington.

Several sources within the government and the military say there was a vigorous debate within the halls of power about whether to call out the former Cold War adversary over Delisle, whose case has been adjourned until June 13 while his lawyer awaits security-washed documents.

A small cadre of cabinet ministers, notably Defence Minister Peter MacKay, argued for a measured, nuanced response to the crisis, which continues to have the potential to cause serious strains among allies, said the sources.

The Conservatives have previously shown no hesitation to paint Moscow as a bogey man, especially when it comes to justifying their military buildup in the Arctic.

The rivalry over Arctic boundaries is being driven by the suggestion of mineral wealth under the melting polar sea. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bus falls off cliff in Albania, killing several

School trip. Prime Minister Sali Berisha sent condolences to the families of the dead

A bus carrying university students on a pre-graduation trip toppled off a mountain cliff in southern Albania on Monday, killing 12 people and injuring another 21, authorities said.

University officials said two buses had been taking 75 third-year language and literature students and three professors from Aleksander Xhuvani University in the city of Elbasan on a trip to the southern city of Saranda.

One bus carrying 33 people fell 80 metres off the road near the town of Himare, 220 kilometres south of the capital, Tirana, a police spokeswoman said.

The cause of the crash was unclear. Albanian media quoted one of the passengers and a resident near the crash site as saying the bus had been going very fast. Albania's transport minister also said the road had been recently repaired.

Fourteen of the injured students were in serious condition and were flown by helicopter to Tirana's military hospital. One died on the way, raising the death toll to 12. Local prefect Edmond Velcani said the bus driver was among the dead. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Facebook stock sinks below IPO

Social network.
Website losses amount to nearly $10 billion of its market value

Facebook's stock is tumbling well below its $38 US IPO price in the social network's second day of trading as a public company on Monday.

By late afternoon, Facebook's stock was at $34.26, down 10.4 per cent from Friday's closing price of $38.23. The company lost nearly $10 billion of its market value, and is now worth around $96 billion, about $2 billion below Amazon.com Inc.

"There must have been some sober second thoughts about this," said Brian Wieser, an analyst at Pivotal Research Group who was first to come out with a "Sell" rating on Facebook's stock on Friday.

It's not that he thinks the world's largest online social network is a bad investment. But at $38 per share, it's just too expensive considering the risks associated with Facebook's brief history and unproven advertising model, he says. His fair price, or "target price," is $30.

Initial public offerings are a delicate game of supply and demand. The investment banks orchestrating the transaction, the deal's underwriters and work with the company to decide how much stock to sell and at what price.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Opening day

Facebook's market debut Friday suffered some hiccups.

- Trading on the Nasdaq was delayed for a half hour due to issues with traders' orders.
- Facebook's stock opened at $42.05 and fluctuated between $45 and $38 before closing at $38.23.

GO TRANSIT PASSENGER SERVICE TO BE AXED IN THREE MONTHS

GO Transit passengers have three months until its trains are off the tracks.

A spokeswoman from the Premier's Office said yesterday that's the time frame needed so people can transition to enhanced bus service or larger carpooling parking lots.

Ontario has chosen to take a new approach to regional transportation in southern Ontario by winding down the GO Transit Commission.

This decision will allow the government to protect investments in southerners' health and education systems while balancing the budget by 2017-18.

NOW THAT WE HAVE YOUR ATTENTION

Unfortunately, this was the notice we received by the provincial government in Northern Ontario.

We understand just how important it is to have a reliable transportation service like GO Transit and fully support this service.

The Provincial Crown Agency, Ontario Northland provides this same service in Northern Ontario as does Metrolinx in Southern Ontario.

In Northern Ontario many residents rely on our Rail and Motor Coach passenger services to commute to work, school, medical appointments and for much of the same reasons you use GO Transit services.

Ontario Northland Transportation Commission which has been in existence for over 110 years providing passenger, freight and communication services from Toronto to the James Bay coast, has been told by the McGuinty Government that they are divesting and cancelling all services.

Dear Southern Ontario friends, we call upon you to help us convince the government that all Ontarians must be treated equally. These vital services are every bit as important in the North as they are to our fellow Ontarians in the South.

Please visit our New Deal for Ontario Northland web site at www.nd4on.ca and register your support.

Thank You,
Northern Ontario

Labour Party MP testifies at media ethics inquiry

One of the British Labour Party's most seasoned operatives said his party's leadership may have gotten too close to media tycoon Rupert Murdoch. Peter Mandelson, who served under both Prime Minister Tony Blair and his successor Gordon Brown, said both men may have gotten "closer than was wise" to the Australian media mogul. Outcry prompts revoked death sentence

In this photo taken in 2009 and made available Monday, Wu Ying, head of the Bense Holding Group, attends the first trial for her running of a Ponzi scheme involving over 773 million yuan ($124 million) between 2005 and 2007, at a court in Jinhua City in eastern China's Zhejiang province. The former Chinese tycoon, who was convicted of illegally raising money for her business, has been sentenced to prison after China's supreme court overturned a death sentence following a public outcry. Canadian banks. Profits to grow in second quarter

After starting the year with strong earnings momentum, Canada's biggest banks will likely report slower growth in the second quarter when they begin rolling out results this week.

The big question will be which banks come out on top in a quarter that's expected to be characterized by lower trading revenues and a weaker outlook for the rest of the year.

"I wouldn't say there's going to be one bank that clearly leaves the rest in the dust," said Gareth Watson, vice-president of investment management at GMP Richardson Ltd.

One factor will be which banks have stronger capital market activity and trading revenues, he added.

"You can't necessarily gauge what those results are going to be, without knowing the exact portfolios (each bank has) and that's probably going to determine who outperforms who."

Bank of Montreal will be the first of the big banks to release its second-quarter earnings as it is scheduled to report Wednesday. TD Bank and Royal Bank deliver their results on Thursday. Scotiabank follows on May 29 and CIBC on May 31. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Slow growth

Earnings for the big Canadian banks are expected to slip four per cent from the first quarter, according to CIBC Capital Markets.

- Overall the banks will likely show growth of 5.3 per cent compared to the same time last year.

U.K.'s proposed surveillance program could expose private lives: Experts

British officials have given their word: "We won't read your emails."

But experts say the government's proposed new surveillance program will gather so much data that spooks won't have to read your messages to guess what you're up to.

The U.K. Home Office stresses it won't be reading the content of every Britons' communications, saying the data it seeks "is not the content of any communication." It is, however, looking for information about who's sending the message and to whom, where it's sent from and other details, including a message's length and its format.

The proposal, unveiled last week as part of the government's annual legislative program, is just a draft bill, so it could be modified or scrapped.

But if passed in its current form, it would put a huge amount of personal data at the government's disposal, which it could use to deduce a startling amount about Britons' private lives — from sleep patterns to driving habits or even infidelity.

"We're entering a whole new phase of analysis based on the data that we can collect," said Gerald Kane, an information systems expert at Boston College. The ocean of information is hard to fathom. Britons generate four billion hours of voice calls and 130 billion text messages annually, according to industry figures. In 2008, the BBC put the annual number of U.K.-linked emails at around one trillion. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Data

So even without opening emails, how much can British spooks learn about who's sending them?

- The ebb and flow of electronic communication, that call to your mother just before bed, that morning email to your boss saying you'll be late, frames our waking lives.

U.S. court won't reduce filesharing fine

The U.S. Supreme Court won't reduce the $675,000 verdict against a Boston University student who illegally downloaded 30 songs and shared them on the Internet.

The high court on Monday refused to hear an appeal from Joel Tenenbaum, of Providence, R.I., who was successfully sued by the Recording Industry Association of America for illegally sharing music on peer-to-peer networks.

In 2009, a jury ordered Tenenbaum to pay $675,000 US, or $22,500 for each song he illegally downloaded and shared.

A federal judge called that unconstitutionally excessive, but the 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reinstated the penalty at the request of Sony BMG Music Entertainment, Warner Brothers Records. and other record labels represented by the RIAA.

Chief Justice John Roberts and Justice Stephen Breyer did not participate in this decision.

Chinese firm buys AMC in big-screen deal

Gerry Lopez, CEO of AMC Entertainment Holdings, left, shakes hands with Zhang Lin, vice-president of Dalian Wanda Group Co., during a signing ceremony for Wanda to acquire AMC in Beijing, China, on Monday. The Chinese conglomerate announced Monday it will buy major U.S. cinema chain AMC for $2.6 billion US to create the world's biggest movie-theater operator. AMC operates 346 cinemas, mostly in the United States and Canada, and says it has 23 of the 50 highest-grossing U.S. outlets. Wanda's purchase reflects the global ambitions of a wave of cash-rich Chinese companies that are using acquisitions to speed their expansion by obtaining foreign skills and brand names. In terms of all Chinese corporate investments in the U.S., the deal is the third largest, according to financial research firm Dealogic. It ranks behind investments by Beijing's sovereign wealth fund, China Investment Corp., of $5 billion for a minority stake in Morgan Stanley and $3 billion in Blackstone Group LP, both in 2007. AVAILABLE IMMEDIATELY: ONE DESPERATE COTTAGE GUEST

SHE SAYS...
Jessica Napier
metronews.ca/shesays

With the Victoria Day long weekend behind us, the summer season has officially begun.

City dwellers delight in the mass exodus that takes place each sun-filled weekend as urbanites pack up their coolers and head out of town. As a national pastime, cottaging (a uniquely Canadian verb) is on par with wearing plaid shirts and truly believing that this is the year that our team will bring home the Stanley Cup.

I was never one of those fortunate people whose parents invested in a piece of summer property — yes, I know #firstworldproblem. Consequently, I've had to make some strategic moves to expand my social circle so that I might have a chance to experience the great outdoors while still enjoying the luxuries of indoor plumbing.

A few years ago, I was unreasonably disappointed when my good friend broke up with her long-time boyfriend whose family owned 3,000 square-feet of lakefront paradise and not one, but two boats. Sure they were never meant to last, but couldn't she have waited until after Thanksgiving? He had a water trampoline for crying out loud.

Cottage, anyone?

Over time, as friends have moved on and moved away, I've found the number of annual cottage invites dwindling. And so, I'm going to take this opportunity to make a case for myself as the BEST cottage guest you never asked for.

Over time, as friends have moved on and moved away, I've found the number of annual cottage invites dwindling. And so, I'm going to take this opportunity to make a case for myself as the BEST cottage guest you never asked for.

First of all, I have already assembled what I imagine to be the ultimate summer 2012 music playlist. You won't have to go through the hassle of finding the perfect ratio of party anthems to mid-afternoon nap jams. But if you just want to listen to Call Me Maybe on repeat I'm also totally OK with that.

I have spent years acquiring Canadiana-inspired outfits to wear for all sorts of cabin-in-the-woods-themed weekends. My wardrobe is starting to look like a Hudson's Bay Co. catalogue.

I'll happily spend the afternoon running to and from the beer fridge to ensure that all cottage-goers are staying properly hydrated. And when the rain clouds roll in, I have you covered with a seriously large collection of board games. Twister, Scattegories, Taboo, Scrabble … boredom is not an option when I come to visit.

Finally, I deserve a getaway. A family of skunks — yes, skunks — recently took up residence underneath the house I live in. And since I'm in a basement apartment, this essentially means I have Pepe Le Pew and friends living in the wall behind my couch.

So if you've got a deck chair to spare this summer, I could use a weekend escape.

Use the buddy system if you have a cottage, please. ISTOCK

Not quite a total eclipse

When sun and moon align

Hikers watch an annular eclipse from Papago Park in Phoenix on Sunday.

The annular eclipse, in which the moon passes in front of the sun leaving only a golden ring around its edges, was visible to wide areas across China, Japan and elsewhere in the region before moving across the Pacific to be seen in parts of the western United States late Sunday afternoon.

The eclipse followed a narrow 14,000-kilometre path for 3 1/2 hours. The ring phenomenon lasted about five minutes, depending on the location. People outside the narrow band for prime viewing saw a partial eclipse.

In Japan

Even lemurs react to marvellous sight

A Japanese zoo said the eclipse made lemurs believe it was evening.

Some 20 lemurs at the Japan Monkey Center in central Japan skipped breakfast, climbed up and jumped between trees and poles, a typical evening behaviour, according to the zoo. They returned to normal after the eclipse.

"They must be reacting to the eclipse," zoo director Akira Kato told public broadcaster NHK.

- 'Ring of fire' eclipses are not as dramatic as a total eclipse, when the disc of the sun is entirely blocked by the moon. The moon is too far from Earth and appears too small in the sky to blot out the sun completely.
- Doctors and education officials have warned of eye injuries from improper viewing. Before the event started, Japan's education minister demonstrated how to use eclipse glasses in a televised news conference.

The Woman in Black

Director. James Watkins

Stars. Daniel Radcliffe, Janet McTeer

The Woman in Black is a haunted-house shocker set in the late 19th century in a remote Yorkshire village where the frights are foremost, and the acting of its star, Harry Potter's Daniel Radcliffe, is almost beside the point. You could hardly find a more scream-tested story. Based on Susan Hill's 1983 novel about a phantom woman killing children to avenge the loss of her son, the tale has also been told on stage, radio and in a TV movie. Radcliffe, playing London solicitor Arthur Kipps, must travel to Eel Marsh House, a dwelling so remote it is accessible by horse-drawn cart — and then only when the tide is out. Of course he must stay several nights at the eerie place, ignoring the ghost stories he's heard. Turns out he heard right: at Eel Marsh, Kipps doesn't just see dead people, he's practically stampeded by them, especially in the film's later reels, when The Woman in Black ends up a multi-generational horror show. Extras include a commentary with Watkins and Jane Goldman and two making-of featurettes.

PETER HOWELL

The Grey

Director. Joe Carnahan

Stars. Liam Neeson, Dermot Mulroney, Frank Grillo

As the security chief of a remote Alaskan oil-drilling complex, the job of Ottway (Liam Neeson) is to hunt and kill the rapacious wolves threatening workers. The Grey's plot starts when Ottway and his team must fly to Anchorage and disaster intervenes. After one of the most realistic — and frightening — air crashes ever committed to film, Ottway jolts out of a snowbank to find himself surrounded by bits of burning jet and a handful of fellow survivors. They've fallen into the domain of the grey wolf. The Grey ends with a thought open to interpretation. Stick around for the credit rolls.

Josh Brolin plays a young Tommy Lee Jones in Men in Black 3. HANDOUT

Hey Brolin, what's a flux capacitor?

Pop quiz. Metro puts Men in Black 3 star Josh Brolin to the test, quizzing him on his knowledge of time travel — Hollywood style

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Josh Brolin knew he was taking on a challenge when he signed on to play a younger version of Tommy Lee Jones in the time-travel-themed Men in Black 3. But how ready was he for the challenge of Metro's Time Travel Pop Quiz? Read on to find out.

First of all, how many gigawatts are required to energize the flux capacitor?
Um... 360,000?

Nope, 1.21.
I'm glad I got that so wrong (laughs).

While time-traveling, can you interact with your past or future self, or would that cause a catastrophic event?
It would cause a catastrophic event. But Boris the Animal does (in Men in Black 3). I just know that time travel as is understood by Hollywood and their storytelling has been if you in any way affect the past that you go into, that it always has a negative effect on the future. That's what I've been told, at least.

Speaking of, say you travel back in time and you arrive standing alone in front of a young Adolf Hitler. What do you do?
Befriend. That'd be the best way to get in there, and then you can detour him. Befriend and detour.

What kind of adventure did Bill and Ted have?
An excellent one. When I met Keanu Reeves, that was the first thing I said. I was like, "Bill and Ted, right on dude!" I did SNL recently and we did The Californians, and I think that was what I did, some version of guys I grew up with and Keanu Reeves in that movie. It's funny because they came up to me during rehearsal and were like, "We'd like you to do more of a California voice." And I said, "Dude, honestly, being from California I'm doing the only voice that's California. Everybody else is doing the funny version. I think I'm just doing the accurate version.

In Terminator, is Arnold Schwarzenegger a cyborg, an alien or a wacky twin?
A cyborg, of course. But a different type of cyborg is Robert Patrick in number two, right? What's it called?

The T-1000.
The T-1000. Very good, man. You know your stuff.

OK, you can only make one time-travel trip. Would you rather go forward or backward?
Wow. That's a great question. And I only have one choice. Forward, for sure. Selfishly, I'd like to backwards because there's a lot of people that I would love to meet, you know? A lot of writers, obviously a lot of very important people from your Jesuses to your Mahatma Gandhis to the obvious. But if you go forward you can see what actually is the consequence of what we're doing now, come back and actually have proof that will happen if we don't change. But then everyone will think you're crazy, of course. And then you have to deal with that, but I already have to deal with that anyway, so that's really par for the course for me (laughs).

Which movie, in your opinion, gets time travel the most right?
God, man. Time Bandits by Terry Gilliam was probably my favorite time travel movie that I've seen, just because it was so fantastical, and Terry Gilliam is such a brilliant director. Like Brazil and Fear and Loathing, the lenses that he uses are so warped and all that. It's brilliant. I like that movie a lot.

A lot of people say Back to the Future.
To me, Time Bandits was a different level of it. Back to the Future is fun and kind of like, (in a Valley Girl voice) "Oh my god, it's so much fun! He's skateboarding and it's a rocket! Oh my god!" (laughs) I haven't seen Time Bandits in a while, I need to watch it again.

I'll give you a chance to redeem yourself on the gigawatts question if you can tell me how fast the DeLoreon in Back to the Future has to go to travel through time.
Oh God, I know this. Sixty-five?

Eighty-eight.
F–! I wouldn't get very far.

Avengers still has muscle

The Avengers continues to muscle out everything else Hollywood throws at it, easily sinking naval rival Battleship and other new releases. With $55.1 million domestically, Disney's superhero sensation remained No. 1 for a third-straight weekend and took in more than the three big newcomers combined. Overseas, The Avengers added an additional $56 million. The film is approaching the $1.2 billion mark worldwide, totalling $457.1 million domestically and $723.3 million internationally. "The Avengers is dominating the marketplace so profoundly that the newcomers are having a tough time breaking in now," said Paul Dergarabedian, analyst for box-office tracker Hollywood.com. Universal's Battleship opened a distant No. 2 with $25.4 million domestically, well below industry expectations. But the board-game adaptation starring Liam Neeson, Taylor Kitsch and Rihanna already has grossed $226.8 million overseas since launching in April, giving it a worldwide total of $252.1 million. Sacha Baron Cohen's comedy The Dictator, in which he plays a tyrannical third-world leader, debuted in third-place with $17.4 million for the weekend. Since opening Wednesday, the Paramount release has taken in $24.5 million.

Riding towards maturity on a New York bus

The We and the I. Filmmaker Michel Gondry captures the hopes, fears and relationships of teens filming on a Bronx bus

JENNIFER LESIEUR
Metro World News in Cannes

Not all teenagers are 'young and dumb.' Although you'll be fooled into thinking this is the case at the beginning of The We and the I.

The film begins as Michael, Teresa, Laidychen, Big T and the gang trade high school in the Bronx for holidays and parties. Kicking and screaming, they pile up inside the bus, kick the small kids off the back seats, mistreat an old lady and shout insults (and throw the odd slap) at each other.

Throughout the entire journey, the audience witnesses the emotional — but easy flowing — evolution of the relationship between the teenagers.

And there's a reason for this: they played themselves. The story line came to Michel Gondry as he was sat on the number 80 bus in Paris.

"It was the end of the day and I watched as these kids came out of class. It was such chaos, there were so many of them. As I saw them coming out one after the other, I started imaging the ties between them and how they evolved."

It was when Gondry came across an extra curricular activity program called The Point offering lessons in "acting, photography and … activism" that he decided to organize a workshop to find his cast. He hired the first 40 that signed up and kept their original names.

"As I started to get to know the kids, I let their stories merge into the one I wanted to tell. The characters slowly grew from there."

The We and the I addresses your typical teenager, moody and tormented: we sit through their stupid jokes, put up with obsessions with sex and figure out the hidden worries.

"My job gives me a good excuse to hang on to my teens. I did feel guilty about the fact that whilst I could act like a kid, I knew I was just playing around," confesses Gondry. "It's this feeling of guilt that forced me to tackle more serious, social problems some of these kids are faced with."

Actors 'for real'. Teen stars of Moonrise Kingdom talk about landing the parts

Teenagers Jared Gilman and Kara Hayward play young lovers Sam and Suzy in Wes Anderson's Moonrise Kingdom. As for the rest of the cast, it's one big name after another: Bruce Willis, Bill Murray, Tilda Swinton and Edward Norton…

"This is my first film," says Hayward. "My tennis teacher told me to go to the open audition and so I went just for fun. At no point did I imagine it would all get so serious!"

Gilman was already enrolled in acting classes when he met Wes Anderson.

"One day my mother came to pick me up from school, something she never does. I thought something bad had happened," he remembers. "But when she told me I had the part, I screamed, cried and laughed. It was one of the happiest moments of my life."

Although set in the 1960s, Hayward and Gilman had no trouble relating to their characters.

"The film is about two besotted teenagers. They don't care about the consequences of their actions, however reckless. And what we learn from it all is that love really does conquer all," concludes Gilman.

So what about that kiss between Sam and Suzy…?

"There weren't that many people on set that day and Wes had more or less choreographed each and single one of our moves. That's when it hit me that we were actors, for real," says Hayward.

Xavier Dolan. Creating buzz at Cannes, at only 23

Is Xavier Dolan annoying? The gifted Quebecois certainly doesn't have a good reputation within the film industry. Especially since he made sure everyone knew how unhappy he was to find out his third film Laurence Anyways, isn't in competition at Cannes, but is "only" in another category. Festival director Thierry Frémeaux explained that being only 23 years of age, Dolan still had plenty of time ahead of him to make an impact on the audience at Cannes. But Dolan wants it all, now. It's for this very reason that he is where he is now.

Laurence Anyways is an incredibly emotional film. "I wanted to talk about things that inspire and obsess me: outcasts, likely morality and unlikely love," he admits.

Laurence, (played by Melvil Poupaud) is a young teacher. His partner, Fred, wants to have a sex change without changing her life. And so it all begins…

Xavier Dolan THE CANADIAN PRESS

"The film takes place over 10 years. You can't tell the entire story in one hour and a half," explains, Dolan, "unless you're OK with making a bad film, you need to take your time."

Faking it till he makes it — Robb Stark learns to be king

Game of Thrones.
Richard Madden's character gives viewers hope as he takes on the role of King in the North

AMBER RAY
Metro World News in New York

In two seasons of Game of Thrones, young Robb Stark has grown from dutiful teenage son to upstart King in the North. It was an accelerated maturation, to say the least, one thrust on him when the monarch in the south murdered his father, whose men in the north now fight a war against the crown in Robb's name. But the meteoric rise to power hasn't come without growing pains, explains actor Richard Madden, who steps into Robb's furs and armour with a stoic optimism.

On romance...

Robb Stark meets a woman this season who questions him — why are you fighting? Why do you want to be king?

- He's spent so much time being a king and leading an army, and then he meets this woman who is a real breath of fresh air and calls him out — she doesn't curtsy to him, she calls him out. He's a boy, she kind of sees him as a man, she asks, "What are you doing? Why is this happening?" She makes him question himself. He's never been asked these questions before — no one ever says to him, "why are you doing this, actually? Are you doing the right thing?" And then he works it out and says, "Yes I am, actually."

How is Robb adjusting to the title of King in the North?
He's learning by doing. A lot of the time, in front of his men, you see him posturing. Robb is acting. He's been very clever and made some great decisions and earned the respect of the people who follow him, but a lot of the time he is pretending to be king. It doesn't feel real to him. It doesn't feel where he's supposed to be, but he is. And he needs to take on that role. By having to pretend to be a man, he becomes a man.

What have you learned about Robb this year that you didn't know last season?
I learned a lot about how he follows his heart. Last season he was kind of pushed into situations and making decisions based on what his father would do — that's what drove me as an actor last year, I kept thinking, 'What would Ned do?' Then into Season 2, he's making these decisions himself.

What excites me the most about him this year is everything that happens to him is a 'first time'. And I think in everyone's lives those are exciting moments, those first times. I learned how he deals with situations. And I've learned that Robb is one of the most honest, genuine characters. Everything he does is for the greater good.

But just like every other character in the show, sometimes your own desires get in the way, and you can become selfish, or you can take liberties because you end up getting too much power — especially for Robb, who is quite young. But I don't think there's an arrogance to Robb yet. Sometimes bits of that filter in, and sometimes he needs to act arrogant to keep the respect. He's gained that, and I like that about him. Everything he does he's worked for, and he's honest, and he gets what he wants through his actions rather than some of the other characters who can talk their way into situations — or out of situations.

The battle against King Joffrey, who had Robb's father beheaded, is a dark and violent journey. But every time a Stark comes on screen, there's this flicker of hope. ... That things can work out, that things could be perfect.

Robb Stark learns to be king by, well, being king. HANDOUT

Do you get that feeling reading the scripts?
There's bits of me as an actor that go, 'What would this be like if Robb were king?' That would present its own challenges, but things could be really good. I think Robb would be such a great king.

But you know, on the same hand, that's not where his heart lies. He was raised to be Lord of Winterfell and that's where he wants to be — he wants to be looking after his people in the north. He's fighting for the cause even though he doesn't want to be king. He wants the world to be a better place; he wants the world to be just and fair and right, and that's what I love so much about him. That drives him to carry on this path of being king and fighting this war; that comes from him wanting the right things to happen.

Author spills on his relationship foibles

I Suck at Girls.
Hilarious and heartbreaking memoir about Justin Halpern's romantic screw-ups

Justin Halpern has become an international phenomenon thanks to the curse-laden advice of his father. Unemployed and living with his parents in his late 20s, Halpern began the now legendary Twitter account S– My Dad Says, which turned into a book, which turned into a TV show (since been cancelled).

But Halpern is bouncing back with an alternately hilarious and heartbreaking memoir of all of the times he screwed up in romantic relationships, fittingly titled I Suck at Girls. We asked him to recount some of those cringe-worthy moments.

This book deals with some of the most embarrassing moments you've had in dating. Which one was the most traumatic for you?
I think — probably as silly as this sounds — after I lost my virginity. I thought it was going to be this seminal point in my life where I was going to become a man, and it just ended so anticlimactically.

I was 20 years old and I wanted to have a relationship that was really cool — the kind you see on TV. I feel like there's a lot of different media out there that talks about 'with each relationship you learn something and you move on,' and all this kind of stuff.

I look at love as this kind of series of really humiliating experiences that end in pain and then hopefully at the end, you have one victory.

Given that your dad was largely responsible for your first success, did you hesitate to include him in the stories, as you did here?
He's such a big part of my life that if he was prominent in the story, then I was going to put him in it. And he also is much more adept at framing things in a way that I never could. He has this very unique and interesting way of dishing out advice, even if he hates it when I call it that.

What's next for you?
We've sold this book as a show — we wanted to do a Wonder Years-type thing set in the early '90s that was a little bit more focused on these 13 and 14-year-old kids learning about women. The early '90s were the last innocent moments this country really had. You can just Google and find porn anywhere now, but back in the day, there was still mystery left, even speaking about women anatomically. I didn't know how they worked.

Great Big Sea has long future ahead

Doyle said his solo excursion would have no impact on the future of Great Big Sea, which will celebrate its 20th anniversary next year. "It's what everyone wants to do, to be doing this when we're 23, and doing this when we're 63," says Doyle.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Alan Doyle grins over Great Big Seachange

Music. Band's frontman branches out with his first solo album

Alan Doyle remembers with uncommon clarity the first time he held a Great Big Sea album in his hands.

It was Aug. 2, 1993, and he was standing outside his rental house on Suez Street in St. John's, N.L. The Doyle family of musicians was, in his words, "legendary" in his hometown of Petty Harbour, but they tended to perform at weddings, parties and dances. They didn't have their own albums, and Doyle assumed it would never be his fate as well.

"I thought that only happened to people from the mainland," Doyle, 43, recalled. "It was the coolest day of my life."

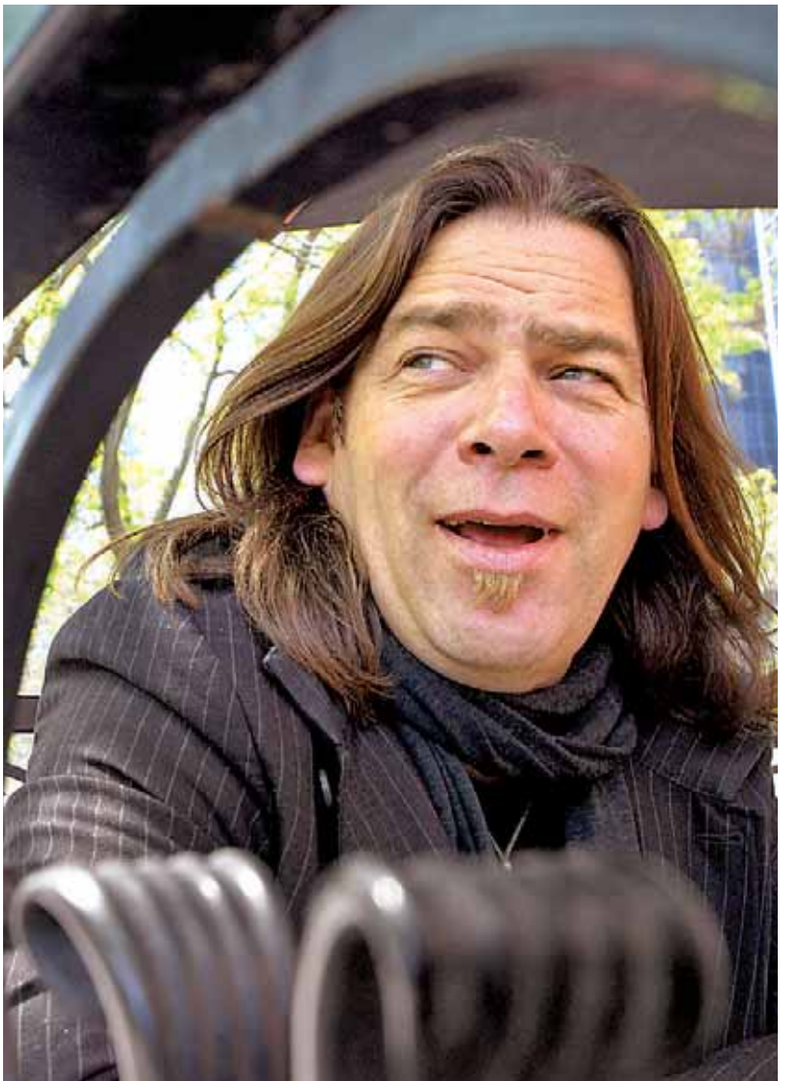
It's roughly 19 years later and Great Big Sea has issued 11 albums since its blue-hued debut, so Doyle has rarely felt that same indescribable kick he had that day.

That was, until last week, when Doyle's solo debut, Boy on Bridge, hit stores.

When asked how he felt finally seeing his given name splashed across a record cover, the personable Doyle slid his iPhone from his pocket and proudly showed off a photo taken the first time he held the album in his hands. In it, he wears a goofy grin as wide as the Rock itself.

"Look at that — I got my own record," he marvels, sipping a coffee on a sunny Toronto patio. "I realize I should be above it. But I can't help it.

"It thrills me to the bone, still."



After nearly 20 years fronting Great Big Sea, Doyle releases his solo debut this week with a disc that finds him exploring new musical territory. FRANK GUNN/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Alan Doyle

That was, in effect, the motivation behind Doyle's decision to issue his first solo record — the music-industry vet doesn't get the opportunity to do anything for the first time that often anymore.

"In many ways, this record is about firsts — it's about doing stuff that I've never done before," Doyle said.

"I really wanted to go live in other people's music worlds. Let's go do it someone else's way for a change."

And change was exactly what Doyle was after, recording the restlessly eclectic Boy on Bridge in a diverse range of locations.

He recorded at some traditional locales including the L.A. studio of Mike Post — the multiple Grammy and Emmy winner who composed the themes to Law & Order, The Rockford Files, L.A. Law and Hill Street Blues — as well as with Gordie Sampson in Nashville.

Doyle, who would seem to have as many connections as a discount intercontinental flight, also collaborated on the album with actor Russell Crowe, Blue Rodeo front man Jim Cuddy and Regina guitarist Colin James.

Katy Perry sings about marriage breakup

While Katy Perry's last big breakup hit, Part of Me, proved to have been written before her marriage to, and split from, Russell Brand, sources say her latest single, Wide Awake, is most certainly about her 14-month marriage to the British comedian, according to People magazine.

"I wish I knew then what I know now," Perry sings on the track. "Wouldn't dive in, wouldn't bow down." Seems pretty fitting.

"It's obviously about Russell," a source says. Perry hasn't commented on the inspiration for the track.

You might be Overpaying for Car Insurance

There are ways to save without impacting coverage

Each insurance company charges a different rate to insure the same driver with the same exact coverage – and these rates vary considerably. By not shopping around for car insurance, you could be paying hundreds, or even thousands, of dollars more than you should. Insurers use their own claims experience to determine their rates and each company will have a different history with each driving profile and car combination. This could mean that you are overpaying for car insurance – and with so many insurance companies, odds are you may not be currently insured with the company that offers the best rate for your driving profile.

The car you drive, where you live, where you drive, and your driving record are all factors that may affect your insurance rate. While most of these items are under your control, others such as the insurance company's experience and corresponding rates are not. One insurance company may charge more for being insured in your postal code, while others may charge more for insuring sport cars. Understanding all of these considerations and knowing that each insurance company charges different rates will help you find the best car insurance rate that suits your needs.

The best way to save on your car insurance is to compare your insurance rate to those offered by other companies. But it can be extremely time consuming to compare the rates individually and brokers only offer rates from 4 to 5 different companies. Web sites like InsuranceHotline.com make it easy to compare your rate against the lowest available rates within their network of over 30 insurance companies.

Exercise craze. Giving your thumbs and your bum a whole new kind of workout

Get your exergaming face on

CELIA MILNE

There's exercise. And there's gaming. And now there's exergaming.

A Canadian pilot study has found blending video games with stationary biking is a great way to meet fitness goals.

"Yes, activity is good for us...but if we don't enjoy it, we simply won't stick with it. Exergaming is a great tool because it is highly enjoyable," says Dr. Melanie Keats (PhD), lead author of the study.

Melanie Keats with the exergaming bikes CONTRIBUTED

Spinning meets video gaming — ready? CONTRIBUTED

Keats, an assistant professor at Dalhousie University in Halifax, and colleagues divided a small group of university students into those who used exercise bikes and followed a cycle training program, and those who used exercise bikes and played video games.

Both groups were asked to cycle for 30 minutes twice a week for six weeks.

Results showed the exergaming people were more likely to attend their exercise sessions, worked harder and improved their fitness levels more than those who used the cycle training program.

Many gyms now have exergaming cycles and rowing machines. Some of these systems connect to online resources and social media such as Facebook and Twitter so that you can track your progress, set up virtual groups and compete against your friends and other participants locally, nationally and around the world.

Keats' advice to those who want to exercise more but lack motivation? "Find something that you enjoy. Try new things, keep mixing things up, and involve your friends and family!"

Making the deft move from Yonge and Eglinton, Cha Lau changed its name (from Cha Liu), snazzed up the joint and added a few menu items to appeal to the younger crowd.

The menu, however, still includes the usual classics:

• A delicate, cleansing Chicken Wonton Soup ($3.25) is surprisingly light. Meanwhile, Hot & Sour Soup ($3.25) is enjoyable, though neither spicy nor sour.

• Steamed dim sum are superb. I sampled Ha Gua ($4.75), a succulent shrimp dumpling with mushroom; Pork Siu Mai ($4), which blends pork and shrimp; Mushroom & Vegetable Dumpling ($3.50) in a carrot juice wrap; and a chive juice wrapped Chicken & Chive Dumpling ($3.65).

• Stir Fried Vermicelli Singapore Style ($5.65) features egg, barbecue pork, shrimp and noodles covered in curry powder, done dry style.

As a lovely way to sample them, these dishes were offered in smaller portions as a Lunch Special ($9.95) when I visited.

Shrimp Grits with Spinach and Tomatoes. Classic Southern comfort

These Shrimp and Grits with Spinach and Tomatoes are inspired by a recipe from Nathalie Dupree, cookbook author and Southern entertainer extraordinaire.

1. In 4-quart Dutch oven over medium-high, combine water and butter. Bring to a boil, then add grits, stirring as you do so.

2. Return to boil, then reduce heat to low to maintain a simmer. Cook, alternating with lid on and off, for 40 minutes, or until soft but not mushy. If they get too stiff, add milk or water. Should be loose and creamy.

3. Stir in the Boursin and cheddar cheeses, and salt and pepper. Add the shrimp, stir and let simmer until cooked through, about 4 minutes.

4. Just before serving, stir in spinach and let wilt for two minutes. Garnish with the tomatoes and a generous amount of grated Parmesan.

Ingredients

- 3 cups water
- 2 tbsp unsalted butter
- 1 cup corn grits
- Half of a 5.2-ounce wheel of Boursin cheese
- 1/2 cup grated sharp cheddar cheese
- 1/2 to 1 tsp kosher salt
- 1/2 tsp ground black pepper
- 1 lb raw shrimp, peeled and deveined
- 3 cups baby spinach
- 1/2 cup grape tomatoes, halved
- Parmesan cheese

What to do when someone 'shows you the money'

Financial windfall. It's not a dilemma we often have but sometimes a pile of cash comes your way. So what should you do with it?

YOUR MONEY
Alison Griffiths
money@metronews.ca
Twitter: @alisononmoney

"A divorce," once noted Margaret Atwood, "is like an amputation: you survive it, but there's less of you." This usually means financially too.

But a friend of a colleague here at Metro, is exiting her marriage with a slightly fatter wallet, $20,000 to be exact. And now she's wondering what to do with it.

Confession. After my own divorce eons ago I bought a red telephone and a sexy green Karmann Ghia. However, with the wisdom of time at my disposal, I'd suggest something different.

First of all, take a breath; park the $20,000 in a short term GIC or high interest savings account for at least a couple of months until the emotional dust settles a bit.

Second, after a windfall of any kind, ask the question, "Who are you?" Spending, saving and investing is entirely dependent on your personality and situation. A young, safely employed, debt-less divorcee with no kids could justify a fab trip, a killer new wardrobe or cool wheels.

On the other hand, debt, dependents and dreams might steer you in a different path. Let's say you have sizeable RRSP (registered retirement savings plan) contribution room. Deploying most of the funds to retirement savings might yield a nice refund next year, which could then be used to pay down debt.

If kids are in the picture dividing the money up between an RRSP and an RESP (registered education savings plan) would provide a smaller tax refund but the RESP deposit will attract a 20 per cent government grant.

Now to dreams! I always advise those receiving a windfall to do a little dreaming about the future. It could be more education, a home or even a business. A few years back one reader took a chunk of her divorce settlement and bought a commercial grade sewing machine, cutting table and fitting dummy. She now has a internet business custom sewing for hard-to-fit folk.

If you have kids you might want to indulge their dreams also. But take care with this because spending to assuage the pain of divorce is a temporary bandage at best.

Next week, I'll offer a few ideas for investing the windfall.

What makes for a profitable rental income property? ISTOCK IMAGES

I cannot help my frugal self — I refuse to pay more for something than it's worth. I'm nearing 30 days left before my house sale closes and I cannot seem to find a new property that fits my criteria AND has reasonable potential for added value.

So, this week I began exploring an entirely new home-buying idea. What if, instead of succumbing to the pressure to buy an over-priced inner-city detached home, I bought with an entirely new set of criteria; a small, centrally located condo with high rental income potential?

I'll live in it for a few years, and when I finally do find the right shack, I can rent out the condo and move into my more affordably priced dream home.

This idea led me to hours of Google research to determine what characteristics I should look for in a profitable rental income property.

Buying in a good neighbourhood will help attract quality tenants. If you would like to rent to a family, the property needs to be located near schools and playgrounds.

Proximity to downtown would be important in attracting a downtown professional. A low neighbourhood crime rate would make tenants feel safe.

Locations that have growing employment opportunities attract a high volume of potential tenants. You can determine which communities are growing by researching on Statistics Canada or by visiting your local librarian.

Municipal planning departments can inform you on what other developments are set to take place near your rental property. Generally speaking, if there's significant development zoned for your area, like malls or condos, growth is expected. But certain developments, like a major thoroughfare could increase noise and decrease green-space which will hurt your tenant prospects.

Vacancy rates indicate how successful you'll be at attracting tenants. Low vacancy rates allow landlords to maintain or raise rental rates. Alternatively, high vacancy rates force landlords to lower rents to scoop up tenants.

The condition of the property can be determined by a home inspector. Avoid ones with structural integrity issues. Inexpensive aesthetic changes can be made to 'healthy' properties that will attract tenants.

Rental rate will determine whether the property is to be profitable. If the rent is not enough to cover the mortgage, condo fees, and taxes, keep looking around.

The bottom line on rental properties is that they're supposed to contribute to your equity and monthly cash flow, not the opposite. In my case, it may serve a secondary purpose — it buys me time to find the right house while building up a long-term investment.

Build up your savings.

In addition to a great low rate on a 5-year mortgage, you'll also benefit from flexible payment options to help you manage your cash flow.

SCANDINAVIA'S #1 SELLING CHILI FAT BURNER

Here is your new powerful and clinically proven fat burning spice: Chili

Burn calories - burn!

The Scandinavian company New Nordic has launched the new Chili Burn™ tablet you need to lose your belly fat. Here are 4 compelling reasons to run to your pharmacy and pick up a box of Chili Burn tablets:

- IT BURNS FAT AND CALORIES
- CLINICALLY PROVEN INGREDIENTS
- IT PROMOTES A LEAN BODY
- STOMACH FRIENDLY COMPOSITION

Ruth burned away her belly-fat and fits into her wedding dress again!

Ruth feels great! She actually got back into her wedding dress of 37 years ago, after taking Chili Burn!

Ruth's story

"After having 5 children, I had a hard time burning that extra fat. As the years progressed, I never viewed myself as being overweight, but I always struggled with fat on my stomach. At 55, I found myself constantly dressing to disguise my belly, staying away from tight clothes and the like.

People noticed my new figure

I read about Chili Burn in a magazine and thought I'd give it a try. I purchased the supplement at my local pharmacy and started taking it in July 2011. Now, 6 months later I have lost my belly fat and people really notice it. They all want to know my secret, so I recommend Chili Burn to family, friends, and acquaintances and really encourage them to try it out. This product will suit anyone who would like to burn fat with natural ingredients and be side effect free. I highly recommend it."

Ruth Veldstra, Hagersville, Ontario

Don't be fooled by other products:

Look for the New Nordic silvertree logo. All fat burners are not alike and Chili Burn is the only one with this composition. It's imported from Scandinavia.

Go-getter sends email survey to woman after dates

We all remember ye olde tale of the online dater who organized his potential matches using a spreadsheet rankings of the women on a scale of one to 10.

Now, brace yourself for the latest star of the awkward dating techniques show.

Meet Mike, a 24-year-old finance worker based in Philadelphia, who is just looking for a little feedback. Unfortunately for him, his former dating partner seized the opportunity to humiliate him after she was sent a survey about her interaction with Mike once they agreed to stop seeing each other.

This guy needs to know when to call it quits. ISTOCK

The young woman met Mike on OKCupid and told Deadspin that he is "six feet, overall moderately attractive." However, after a few dates, she realized it just wasn't "there."

"He struck me as a little socially inept hence why I was starting to doubt the 'non-physical' attraction," she told Deadspin.

"He wasn't too creepy, just the type of guy who over analyzes every detail and feels completely awkward in the majority of social situations. It didn't seem like he got out much."

And that's when Mike sent the survey ... in an email ... with a subject line including a Romeo & Juliet passage.

"Good Night, Good night! Parting is such sweet sorrow, that I shall say good night till it be morrow," if you must know.

So what is it that Mike wants to know? Basically, all of the questions everyone wonders after a date, but never ever asks because it would be super weird and socially inappropriate to do so. For example, "Mike is very masculine. At any point; did you feel he was compensating for anything?"

Here's another perfectly reasonable question: "Are you a feminist? — your answer is for informational purposes only."

Also, in case she wanted to leave Mike any final thoughts, he included an area where she could "feel free to use the space below to draw Mike a picture."

Tips for small talk

CHARLES THE BUTLER
askcharlesthebutler@metronews.ca
For more, visit charlesmacpherson.com

Hello Charles the Butler! When I go to my friends' weddings, like everyone else I have to sit at a table of about 10 people, but I often don't know most of them. Am I honestly expected to talk to these strangers at my table?

It would be very rude to arrive at a dinner table, sit down, and not speak to anyone except the person beside you!

Yes, you need to socially make an effort and try to introduce yourself to all of the others at the table and you need to make polite conversation with them.

Now often people have trouble making "small talk" as they do not know what to say, so here is a trick I teach people.

Read the newspaper the morning of your event. By reading the paper, this allows you to know what is going on around the world and have topics of conversations with people as this gives you many, many things to talk about. If you can't get a paper, listen to the news on the radio or go online.

Office 101: How to ... not get fired

Tips for success.
When a company is in trouble, your every move will be is scrutinized. But that doesn't mean you're next to go

Learn to handle a handshake
People will judge you within seconds. As lovely as you may be, a sloppy handshake is likely to leave a bad impression.
"A handshake needs to be firm, but not too firm. Make sure you look the person in the eye as you clasp their hand and not over their shoulder," says etiquette and protocol expert William Hanson.

Look the part: look after yourself
How can you look after an account if you're incapable of looking after yourself? Hanson believes everything about you needs to be perfect, "make sure your clothes fit, your shoes are polished and your laces aren't frayed. Don't give the impression you just rolled out of bed."
When you exchange business cards with a client, never pull out the one you had scrunched up at the bottom of your bag. Keep them in a case so they don't get damaged. It's also crucial you check the details (title and number) are up to date before handing it out insists Hanson.
Less really is more ladies. Wearing too much makeup can be distracting and express a lack of self-confidence. "You want to look nice, but you don't want your face to do all the talking," he adds.

Cherish a needy boss
Be indispensable. Find out what your boss doesn't like to do and strive to excel in whatever that is says etiquette expert Jacqueline Whitmore: "Dependability in this economy is key. Show up on time and never hesitate to put in those extra hours. If you're not available, your boss will just run to someone else for help."

Don't become the office jerk
Ditch the bad attitude. Most people would rather work with someone who's so-so at getting the job done but pleasant, than with someone who's extremely skilled, but a total jerk.

Facts and figures

Cost effective

- Funding. Government funding of post-secondary education as a percentage of GDP was highest in Finland, Norway and Denmark. But when private expenditure — such as tuition — was taken into account, the picture changed drastically; funding was highest in the U.S., South Korea and Canada.
- Tuition. Forty-five per cent of the cost of higher education is paid for by tuition.
- Student opinion. Sean Madden, president of the Ontario Undergraduate Student Alliance, says that students are becoming increasingly concerned about the amount of time professors are spending in the classroom, and their effectiveness as teachers. Madden would like to see rankings consider student feedback.

Study: Canada's higher-education system ranks high

Global ranking.

Created to show the importance of higher education in a country's economy

Canada's places of higher learning have snagged the third spot in a global ranking of the top post-secondary education systems.

The United States made it to the top of the list of 48 countries, followed by Sweden. Finland, Denmark and Switzerland scored fourth, fifth and sixth, respectively. India came in last.

The study was conducted by researchers at the University of Melbourne and was sponsored by Universitas 21, a global network of universities whose

Canada sits in third place. ISTOCK

Canadian members are the University of British Columbia and McGill University.

A country's success was determined by things like the number of research articles published, the percentage of residents partaking in higher schooling and the national employment figures. Each country's population was also taken into account for the study.

"What is important is a policy and regulatory environment in which universities are given a good deal of internal freedom, but there are external quality checks," said lead investigator Ross Williams.

Universitas 21 said the ranking was created to show the importance of higher education in a country's economy and place in the world. Having a well-connected education system can foster new ideas and good trade relationships with other countries, the report said.

Can video games help us learn?

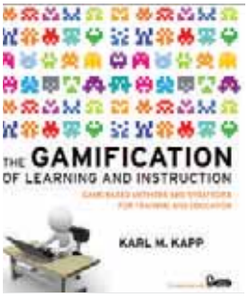
BRUCE WALSH
Metro News in Philadelphia

When you open up a new video game, do you read the instructions? Of course not. It's just more fun to jump in and start pressing buttons. And, according to author Karl M. Kapp, that's an instinct that educators should harness.

In his latest book, The Gamification of Learning and Instruction, Kapp lays out his vision for appropriating the principles of video game design for the classroom.

Surprisingly, his theories have little to do with online learning and more to do with the nuts and bolts of the traditional classroom.

"If we're clever about it, we can get to what really matters in games: It gives people a sense of purpose and mission, and it taps into our internal drives to overcome challenges," says Kapp, a professor at Bloomsburg University.



"It's about thinking like a game designer. They think challenge first, interactivity first, engagement first. In training, we tend to think content first. But content doesn't mean anything unless it's in a certain context."

For Kapp, at the heart of a well-designed course is providing students with an opportunity to learn as they fail — to throw away the instruction manual and get right to work.

"Recently I oversaw an investigator training class, and the first day they said: 'Today we're going to learn the model for investigating,'" explains Kapp.

"I think that's a bad model. As soon as the person walks into the class, you should say, 'Look, someone's been accused of embezzling $10,000. What are you going to do?'"

Common themes

Kapp has identified four common themes of video game design that can be applied to college-level lesson plans.

1. A challenge put forth at the outset of the course.
2. Integration of the student's experience into a narrative.
3. Constant feedback on individual progress.
4. A freedom to fail without penalty.

MLB. Drabek gets going on road as Toronto capitalizes on shoddy Tampa defence

Kyle Drabek overcame command issues to win for the first time on the road this season, Yunel Escobar hit a tie-breaking homer and the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Tampa Bay Rays 6-2 on Monday night.

Drabek (4-4), who entered 0-3 with a 5.23 ERA away from home, allowed two runs and three hits in six innings. The right-hander walked six, struck out three and had three wild pitches.

Escobar put Toronto in front 3-2 on a solo homer off Jeremy Hellickson (4-1) in the sixth.

The Blue Jays took advantage of two Tampa Bay errors to go up 6-2 with a three-run eighth. Two runs scored when third baseman Sean Rodriguez was charged with an error for an errant throw to second on Jose Bautista's bases-loaded grounder.

Edwin Encarnacion added an RBI grounder later in the eighth.

The Rays took a 1-0 lead in the first when B.J. Upton was awarded a home run after a video review by the umpires determined his fly ball struck an overhanging catwalk.

Upton hit a high fly to centre off Drabek. Blue Jays outfielder Colby Rasmus appeared to move into position to make the catch near the warning track, but the ball suddenly dropped in front of him and Upton reached second base.

It was decided that the ball hit in the area that according to the ground rules is a home run.

Hellickson gave up five runs — two earned — and eight hits over 7 1/3 innings.

Blue Jays third baseman Brett Lawrie was back in the lineup after serving a four-game suspension.

McNamee wraps up testimony against Clemens

Brian McNamee finally got to name names in front of the jury. Andy Pettitte. Chuck Knoblauch. Mike Stanton.

The U.S. government's case got a boost as it hit the homestretch Monday in the sixth week of the perjury trial that will determine whether Roger Clemens lied to Congress in 2008 when the former star pitcher denied using performance-enhancing drugs.

McNamee, Clemens' former strength coach, is the only person to claim firsthand knowledge of Clemens using steroids and human growth hormone, and his credibility was attacked relentlessly last week by Clemens' lawyer.

The government embarked on a rehabilitation job with its key witness on Monday, then moved on to a beer expert who put a date on the infamous Miller Lite can that became a key piece of evidence and a witness who placed Clemens at a pool party at Jose Canseco's house in 1998.

Before Monday, McNamee had not been allowed to say that he provided former Clemens teammates Pettitte and Knoblauch with human growth hormone, or that he helped ex-Clemens teammate Mike Stanton obtain HGH from a drug dealer.

Bass lowers boom as Celtics top 76ers

NBA. Boston forward comes through in Game 5 with career night

Brandon Bass scored 18 of his post-season career-high 27 points in the third quarter on Monday night as the Boston Celtics pulled away from the Philadelphia 76ers to win 101-85 and take a 3-2 lead in their Eastern Conference semifinal series.

Kevin Garnett added 20 points and Rajon Rondo had 13 points and 14 assists for the Celtics, who can advance to the East finals with a victory in Philadelphia on Wednesday. The Sixers need a win to force the series back to Boston for a decisive Game 7 on Saturday.

Elton Brand scored 19 and Evan Turner had 11 points and 10 rebounds for Philadelphia, which led by six points early in the third quarter before Boston scored 14 of the next 16 points. Bass scored eight of them, including back-to-back dunks followed by a steal that set up Ray Allen's fast-break layup to give the Celtics a 63-57 lead with five minutes left in the quarter.

Boston closed out the third with a 10-2 run over the final three minutes and outscored the Sixers 28-16 in the period.

Game 5

Celtics	76ers

The Celtics also scored 16 of the first 22 points in the fourth quarter — seven from Rondo — to put away the game.

Paul Pierce had 16 points — going 9 for 9 from the free throw line — and Allen, back in the starting lineup because of an injury to Avery Bradley, had five points.

The Celtics acquired Bass in December in a trade with Orlando for Glen "Big Baby" Davis, and he worked his way into the starting lineup after the all-star break. Although he solidified the power forward position after Garnett moved to centre, he hadn't done anything spectacular — until Monday.

Frattin's pair helps Marlies down Barons

AHL. Marlies forward scores game-winner and his league-leading eighth goal of playoffs to help Toronto to 2-1 series lead

Matt Frattin scored two goals, including the game-winner with two minutes to play as the Toronto Marlies defeated the Oklahoma City Barons 5-3 on Monday in Game 3 of the American Hockey League Western Conference finals.

Frattin snapped a shot past Barons goalie Yann Danis for his league-leading eighth goal of the playoffs and the Marlies pulled ahead 2-1 in the best-of-seven series.

Philippe Dupuis, Ryan Hamilton and Jerry D'Amigo had the other goals for Toronto. Ben Scrivens stopped 25 shots for his ninth win of the playoffs.

Brian Rodney, Chris VandeVelde and Magnus Paajarvi replied for Oklahoma City. Yann Danis made 22 saves in defeat, his fourth of the postseason.

The tightly-contested Game 3 in front 7,327 fans was in stark contrast to the pair of blowouts (5-0 and 5-1) in the Games 1 and 2 in Oklahoma City.

The Barons set the pace early with a furious forecheck and outshot Toronto 8-3 in the first 10 minutes of the game.

But it was the Marlies that opened the scoring at 12:35 with the Barons' Curtis Hamilton off for boarding. Dupuis wristed a weak shot from the left faceoff dot that found its way past a screened Danis.

The teams played a tight-checking second period until they erupted for four goals in the span of just over four minutes late in the frame.

Toronto, which was just 10.6 per cent on the man advantage coming into the game, scored their first two goals Monday on powerplays.

Oklahoma City also scored a rare powerplay goal against Toronto in the second period. Toronto led all playoff teams with a 96 per cent success rate on the penalty-kill coming into the game.

Games 4 and 5 will be at Ricoh Coliseum.

Nazem Kadri left the game after the first period due to an injury and didn't return. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Horoscope

Aries | March 21 - April 20. Keep your wits about you today, because the planets indicate there is money to be made.

Taurus | April 21 - May 21. As from today there should be no further doubts about what it is you desire and what it is you intend to do with your life.

Gemini | May 22 - June 20. Some thoughts can be shared and some thoughts are best kept to yourself.

Cancer | June 21 - July 22. There is a lot you can do on your own but there is absolutely nothing you cannot do with like-minded friends by your side.

Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22. If ever there was the perfect time to impress employers and other important people that time is now. Be brilliant.

Virgo | Aug. 23 - Sept. 22. You may have an overwhelming urge to get away from your everyday environment but because you have duties to perform that might not be possible today.

Libra | Sept. 23 - Oct. 22. The Sun in Gemini at this time of year encourages you to think in new ways.

Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov. 21. Don't try to analyze why you feel so good today because the more you chase after the feeling the more it will slip away from you.

Sagittarius | Nov. 22 - Dec. 21. Success is yours if you have the right attitude. And what is that? That you are a blessing on the world.

Capricorn | Dec. 22 - Jan 20. Even the most tongue-tied of Capricorns will express themselves beautifully today.

Aquarius | Jan. 21 - Feb 18. Take life as it comes and don't worry about tomorrow or the day after that.

Pisces | Feb. 19 - March 20. Go out of your way to get along with people today, even people you might prefer to avoid. Everyone you meet has something to teach you.
